A Letter from
Our Proprietors

We would like to thank you for sharing part of your day with us at the Alley Cat Lounge. There are hundreds of choices for places to eat, drink and be merry, and we are thrilled that you have chosen our little basement escape. The acts of breaking bread, sharing a drink and enjoying companionship are as essential as sunlight and water to a community, and have been bringing people together for centuries. Savannah has welcomed folks from all over the world for generations, and we are proud to be a part of that continuing tradition of Southern hospitality.

Our passion for hospitality and enjoying the small moments of life strengthened our bond and made this adventure possible. The charm and history of these old buildings, squares and people have given pause to our wanderlust and encouraged us to add something special to this wonderful place we now call home. The ACL adventure began in 2013, when we chose to call Broughton Street our home. We began returning this beautiful old building to her former glory in 2015, and it has truly been a labor of love. As we welcomed our first guests in November of 2016, we hoped our passion was evident and you enjoyed this space as much as we did.

We strive to bring you the highest quality, freshest ingredients possible in everything we serve. Our goal is to put as much emphasis on the hospitality and interpersonal relationships as our distillers, brewers and vintners have put into the products we serve. We cherish and appreciate the history of our craft, and try to honor those that have blazed the trail we walk on.

In our opinion, we do not serve drinks – we serve people and we serve experiences. The drinks, decor, music and location are merely tools to help enjoy this moment in time and these future memories. Please relax, unwind, be yourself, meet old friends, make new ones, share the pleasures and heartaches of life, celebrate achievements, regroup after failures, recharge your soul and prepare for another day. Our only request is that you walk up those stairs happier and more satisfied than when you walked down them. Enjoy!

A Note About Our Bar Manager:

Daniel is a passionate and creative bartender who has been behind the bar full time for over a decade... from working busy college bars to running bar programs in the upscale restaurant scene, he has created cocktails of all types.

His focus on fermentation and sustainability has invoked some distinctive and playful drinks. While his favorite types of cocktails to create, showcase local ingredients in an inventive way, his love and respect for the classics remain.

Favorite cocktail? By far, the Sazerac (when properly executed).

Favorite Handshake? Tecate and Sotol.

Daniel’s overall vision for Alley Cat is to create an environment for everyone to drink, laugh, maybe learn a little, and just have a good time.

Bob Dylan: A Love Letter to New Orleans

The first thing you notice about New Orleans are the burying grounds - the cemeteries - and they're a cold proposition, one of the best things there are here. Going by, you try to be as quiet as possible, better to let them sleep. Greek, Roman, sepulchres- palatial mausoleums made to order, phantomesque, signs and symbols of hidden decay - ghosts of women and men who have sinned and who've died and are now living in tombs. The past doesn't pass away so quickly here. You could be dead for a long time.

The ghosts race towards the light, you can almost hear the heavy breathing spirits, all determined to get somewhere. New Orleans, unlike a lot of those places you go back to and that don't have the magic anymore, still has got it. Night can swallow you up, yet none of it touches you. Around any corner, there's a promise of something daring and ideal and things are just getting going. There's something obscenely joyful behind every door, either that or somebody crying with their head in their hands. A lazy rhythm looms in the dreamy air and the atmosphere pulsates with bygone duels, past-life romance, comrades requesting comrades to aid them in some way. You can't see it, but you know it's here. Somebody is always sinking. Everyone seems to be from some very old Southern families. Either that or a foreigner. I like the way it is.

There are a lot of places I like, but I like New Orleans better. There's a thousand different angles at any moment. At any time you could run into a ritual honoring some vaguely known queen. Bluebloods, titled persons like crazy drunks, lean weakly against the walls and drag themselves through the gutter. Even they seem to have insights you might want to listen to. No action seems inappropriate here. The

Three Cocktails, One City.

Each of these cocktails is a rendition of the classic Creole Cocktail throughout the years.

Excerpt from Chronicles: Volume One by Bob Dylan

city is one very long poem. Gardens full of pansies, pink petunias, opiates. Flower-bedecked shrines, white myrtles, bougainvillea and purple oleander stimulate your senses, make you feel cool and clear inside.

Everything in New Orleans is a good idea. Bijou temple-type cottages and lyric cathedrals side by side. Houses and mansions, structures of wild grace. Italianate, Gothic, Romanesque, Greek Revival standing in a long line in the rain. Roman Catholic art. Sweeping front porches, turrets, cast-iron balconies, colonnades- 30-foot columns, gloriously beautiful- double pitched roofs, all the architecture of the whole wide world and it doesn't move. All that and a town square where public executions took place. In New Orleans you could almost see other dimensions. There's only one day at a time here, then it's tonight and then tomorrow will be today again. Chronic melancholia hanging from the trees. You never get tired of it. After a while you start to feel like a ghost from one of the tombs, like you're in a wax museum below crimson clouds. Spirit empire. Wealthy empire. One of Napoleon's generals, Lallemaud, was said to have come here to check it out, looking for a place for his commander to seek refuge after Waterloo. He scouted around and left, said that here the devil is damned, just like everybody else, only worse. The devil comes here and sighs. New Orleans. Exquisite, old-fashioned. A great place to live vicariously. Nothing makes any difference and you never feel hurt, a great place to really hit on things. Somebody puts something in front of you here and you might as well drink it. Great place to be intimate or do nothing. A place to come and hope you'll get smart - to feed pigeons looking for handouts.

FOR PLEASURE

How to meet a good friend

This information booth at the railway station is a traditional meeting place for friends.

But it's much more likely that you'll be meeting this particular friend in your home, or at your favorite bar.

For we're talking about an Old Fashioned made with that matchless whiskey, Four Roses. And Four Roses, as everybody knows, makes the most magnificent Old Fashioned you've ever tasted.

That's why you're in for something extra special every time you say to your barman, "Make mine with Four Roses!"

Four Roses is now a Blended Whiskey—a fine blend of 80% straight whiskeys, 3 years or more old, and 20% grain neutral spirits, 85.3 proof.
